An Evening Echo.

Beauty is God's handwriting, a wayside sacrament; welcome it, then, in every fair face, every fair sky, every fair bower; and be sure that yet gayer meadows and yet bluer skies await thee in the world to come. —CHARLES KINGSLEY.

J. M. Carskadon, A. S. Law, L. G. Ogle and other election officers, denounce an Exponent editorial in connection with the tearing up of ballots and so forth at the Carle Court precinct in the Republican primary election as a fabrication. Next.

A primary election for the selection of county nominees never entered the heads of the Democratic county executive committee. The local Democratic machine does not believe in "letting the people say."

Republicans and Democrats alike seem to think well of Clarksbu. The former nominated Charles W. Lynch for a state supreme judgeship without his asking them to do so. The latter named B. G. Smith for a similar place after a very active campaign made by him and his friends. The situation insures a supreme judge from Clarksbu, no matter which political party triumphs at the polls.

The Democratic county committee at its meeting Monday should have "disputed" the fact that the Democratic state machine paid no attention to the edict issued by the county committee recently to voters to line up for Woodrow Wilson for president. This state machine had the steam roller ready for the county committee's candidate as a date gate at large to the Baltimore convention and the right of that roller to crush the county committee into not even presenting the name of Harrison County's favorite son.

Core Catalogued.
Every child in the Washington city schools of the United States is to be card catalogued, and a running history of his entire school career in the grades kept permanently on file, according to plans formulated by investigators whose report has just been issued for free distribution by the United States Bureau of Education. Although this plan has just been inaugurated, it has the approval of the National Education Association, while some 300 cities have already begun to keep the cards. Eventually it is anticipated, about 6,000,000 pupils will be thus tabulated.

With the new card catalogue system in full operation throughout the country, definite and scientific answer can be made to a large number of questions the solution to which must now be guessed in large measure. How many times has a given child been detained in a grade? How many backward, over-aged or retarded children are there in a given city's schools? How does this showing compare with other cities? Does foreign birth affect progress? If so, how? Does kindergarten training help a child through the grades? How does absence from school affect progress?

These and other like questions can be answered readily and accurately when the new cumulative card index, in which every young American has his place can be drawn upon for the information.

The form of card contains the following entries, among others: Age of child, date of admission to school, grade, days present, health, conduct, scholarship, place of birth, vaccinated, name and occupation of parent or guardian.

As the child moves from grade to grade, or from building to building, the card containing his past record will follow him, as will also be the case even if he should move from one city to another. In this way his entire past and present in school will be checked off, against each other, point by point and year by year.

In addition to introducing the cumulative index card as a means of keeping the school history of every American child, the committee of investigators has also drawn up a uniform method of reporting, fiscal statistics, so that costs may be computed upon the same universal basis.

The new scheme of school statistics was drawn up by a committee appointed by the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association, working in co-operation with the United States Bureau of Education. The result of their labors is issued as a government document under the title "Report of the Committee on Uniform Records and Reports," and will be sent free upon request to the United States Commissioner of Education, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C.

Dr. Hatfield's Strength.
There are several lessons from the recent Republican primary election, one of which is the conclusive proof of Dr. H. D. Hatfield's strength with the people as a gubernatorial candidate. Dr. Hatfield was as strong as Gibraltar among his own people in the southern tier of counties, and the results show that he was unusually strong in all the other sections of the state. He was known at home and to know him was to vote for him. He was not well known in the northern and eastern ends of the state but the people had confidence in him and his platform as shown by the pluralities given him.

The following Fairmont West Virginian editorial sizes up the remarkable race made by Dr. Hatfield and how invulnerable the Democratic party will find his strength with the people of the state:

The enormous majority of Dr. H. D. Hatfield, of McDowell county, in the three cornered race for the gubernatorial nomination for governor is positive testimony of the great strength he has as a leader, not only in his own section but all over the state. The friends of all Swisher and Dillon who expressed their opinion as to the outcome conceded the nomination of Dr. Hatfield several days before the election and their only surprise is at the size of his majority.

Few ever doubted his ability to swing almost the solid vote of the Norfolk and Western tier of counties to his campaign, but it was believed that his slight assistance in the northern section of the state would be a handicap sufficient to overcome any lead he might secure at home, but such was not the case.

A closer analysis of the vote brings out the latent strength of the doctor that was not so well understood before.

In the first place Dr. Hatfield is a big, brawny man, of magnificent physique standing over six feet in height, but with delicate feminine features which in a manner cover up the stronger elements of the Hatfield character, but the Hatfield in action casts aside the cloak of femininity and becomes at once aggressive, forceful and a dominant leader of men. This fact is demonstrated by the following he called to his support by one swing around the state. Another element of strength was to be found in his platform which clearly defined his position on important public questions, and no one familiar with Dr. Hatfield believes but what he will stand by and use his utmost force to make good every platform pledge he has made. Still another working influential contributory influence in his behalf was the members of the medical profession throughout the state who stood by Dr. Hatfield almost to a man regardless of their political affiliations. Many Democratic doctors worked till the polls were closed for the success of their fellow practitioner who ranks among the most skilled physicians and surgeons of the state.

The practically unanimous support the doctor received at home testifies as to the confidence his home people have in him. A dispatch from Mr. Dowell county gives the vote of his home precinct, Eckman, as follows: Hatfield 262, Dillon 11, and Swisher

PICTURE

Of the Recall of Columbus Arrests Attention and Admiration of Knights.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—West Virginia members of the Knights of Columbus, who were here for the unveiling of the Christopher Columbus statue in front of the Union station, were especially interested in one of the paintings hanging on the walls of the Capitol in the Senate end of the building. The special painting is entitled "The Recall of Columbus," and was done by W. G. Hegston, of Parkersburg, whose home for a few years has been in New York. When Christopher Columbus appealed to Queen Isabella for funds for his expedition to discover the new world and was refused, he started away discouraged. A short distance from the palace he was overtaken by a messenger with a note from the queen recalling him and stating that she had arranged to finance his expedition. The painting represents Columbus reading the queen's message recalling him.

At this morning's session of the court, Harry Fally was arraigned on a charge of being drunk and disorderly Sunday evening at the White House hotel in the East End and of abusing a woman with whom he had been drinking. The woman, a well known police court character, was taken to her home by policemen. Fally told the mayor he bought twenty-five cents worth of hay rum at a drug store Sunday, gave some of it to the woman to drink and also drank some himself. The mayor remanded the fellow to jail for a further investigation of the case in the evening.

Thirteen men who were arrested at 2 o'clock Sunday morning in a gambling room over Elmer Lowe's saloon on North Fourth street by a squad of policemen, forfeited cash bonds of $21.60 each at Sunday morning's session of the court. With the exception of Lowe all gave fictitious names. Lieutenant N. M. Whyte and Policemen Simms, Joyce and Sappington made a raid upon the place.

Men giving the names of Charles Moore and Clarence Stout were sentenced to serve five days each in jail in default of paying fines for street drunkenness.

Orville Windom, a teamster, was fined $5 and costs for dumping garbage into Elk creek. A. J. Loar was acquitted of a like charge.

Three other men were convicted of street drunkenness. One paid a fine of $3 and costs, another forfeited a like sum and the other was deported in default of paying a fine of the same amount.
